AND VICINITY.

Red House, a village of about eighty inhabitants, is located on the L & N railroad six miles from this city, in a level place. Otter Creek dividing it into, with large and commanding hills on either side. This is the largest shipping point in the northern part of the county supplied from a strip of country extending from Union City to Foxtown and nearly to the city limits. Red House received its appellation from the red color which the owner of the first house had it painted, some three score years ago. An incident happened there several years ago.
